Hi!

Thanks for the update. Sounds like you are doing the very best you can.

I hope to be there in court tomorrow

See you soon

Best wishes

John -

Had difficult day to day : Wilcock was very elusive although I did get him to agree that the admin of morphine on 14 and 15th was unsafe - as to where that will get us I don't know.

He referred to a report from a doctor Marshal which was then copied to all of us but which I was then prevented from xx on notwithstanding that Marshall (a hepatologist) considered the dosage of morphine to have been 'reckless' and that Mr.Wilson's death was caused by this (or at least his going into coma).

I am kicking myself for not asking Wilcock whether he thought it was reckless - there it is - at least Mr.Wilson continues to be happy with what I am doing for him although I must say I travelled back to London feeling gloomy!

Anyway tomorrow I finally get to question Barton.

I think unlawful killing in Mr.Wilson's case will not be left to the jury although I am going to try!
