Hello Kiran

I have just checked the file, and agree that the document dated 11.7.91 is the nearest thing we have to an internal management report.

Are you suggesting that we should agree to release this document to the enquirer at the end of the inquest? I suppose if we make such an agreement, if a further inquest has been announced by then, we could reconsider?

Regards

Not as far as I am aware Code A Having said that we are still in the process of supplying information to the Coroner so if it would be fair to say that the disclosure process is not complete and that is why I was content with saying it forms part of the papers for the forthcoming inquest especially as steps were still being taken to identify the report and that such a report exists. As far as I can recall we considered the document dated July 1991 to be the nearest to the internal management report. Perhaps you could confirm.

The sentence relating to a consideration of the release of subsequent management minutes on conclusion of the inquest has I think crept in following my review. There is, as is pointed out, no reason why that decision cannot be made now subject to the information being available.
