Mrs Tennant, the writer of the attached letter, is a juror for the GWMH Inquests. She telephoned to say her husband is an alcoholic who is now suffering physical illnesses which have very much worsened during the last few weeks. She has asked to be excused as she is her husband's sole carer and she feels that she would not be able to concentrate on the Inquest evidence while worrying about her husband's condition.

Can I excuse her? This would leave 10 jurors.

Dear Sir or Madam,

Please accept my sincere apologies as I will be unable to fulfil my duties as an Juror on starting date of March 18th 2009. Unfortunately my husband has been ill for some time with a raft of progressive illnesses which he managed with medication, as he chose to ignore the advice regarding his life style from his G.P., his problems with daily living have increased. He needs more help from me as the time goes by and the last 3 weeks I have seen a vast decline in his health.

This all causes a lot of stress for me as I am his sole carer at home, leading me to believe my mind would be pre-occupied with his problems instead of concentrating on my job as a juror.

I hope my decision will not cause too many problems, and I apologise once again.

yours faithfully
