Dear Sue,

In answer to your queries -

1. The backlog related to cases where we've had all the reports, etc, in and just need to fix hearing dates. We've managed to keep our heads above water on everything else and there's no backlog of cases where we'll suddenly be asking you for masses of reports. All the new staff will be in place by July and we're actually starting off on Inquests again next week.

2. I'll pass your email on to Mr Bradley. I know he's planning a pre-Inquest review meeting in August for all the interested parties to sort out issues like timing, identification of witnesses, etc. That meeting should enable more meaningful information to emerge on actual hearing dates.

Kind regards,

David C. Horsley

Dear Mr Horsley

Could I raise two issues with you please:-

1. Workload - as you know, the workload coming to the Trust from your office has diminished recently because of your staffing problems. However, we are a little unclear as to what will happen in the future. Presumably you will have a backlog of Inquest dates to arrange when you are fully staffed, but we wondered if there will also be a backlog of new cases in similar numbers to those received prior to your staff shortage, or if in fact we have been receiving all the new cases that you have had?

You will understand that we are trying to gauge our future workload and plan how we will deal with it if we are going to have a rush of work in a short period of time once you have been able to recruit more staff. Any estimates you can give us in this respect would be very helpful.

2. Gosport War Memorial Hospital Inquests

Before you went on holiday, you announced that you had opened Inquests into the deaths of 10 patients at GWMH who were cared for by the Medicine for Older People service which at the time of
