Hi Jo

That's fine if you do think it will take that degree of time. We are not really looking for extensive advice - more a steer on whether the minimal response I am proposing raises obvious risks.

Thanks

Tim

Tim

Very happy to advise. I am now away until Tuesday next, but suggest I ask an associate to prepare some advice and suggest any drafting changes which I will review upon my return. I imagine it will be no more than around 4 hours' work for the associate and no more than 2 hours of my time, at the usual CHRE discounted rates.

Does that sound OK?

Kind regards.

Jo

Subject: CHRE Barton case - follow up advice

Dear Joanna

We have received the above letter from Blake Lapthorn solicitors who are representing unnamed clients interested in the Barton case. I also attach my proposed response.

In view of the vague reference to judicial review, we would be grateful if you would advise whether my proposed response leaves us open to particular risks.

Can you tell us how much your advice will cost?

Thanks very much.

Tim
