Interesting - she will not have worked at the Hospital in 2002, and may have adopted a policy of not signing certs in general practice (if any were needed); this finding could therefore be reassuring. However, a sight of all the data from 1993 would be helpful before drawing a firm conclusion.

We didn't find any - does that make any sense?

Thanks - does this mean there were no Dr Barton deaths in 2002, or that your team has not gone through these yet?

We are about halfway through the other years (which include lots of Dr Bartons). Should all be done later this week/early next.
